CHAMBER OF COMMERCE GETS TUBE MILL FOR CONNELLSVILLE.

Ground Broken This Morning for Plant of Keystone Tube Works Near Wheeler.

WILL OPERATE BY JUNE 15

Company Is To Manufacture Special Tubing Which Is Used For Many Different Purposes—Monthly Pay Roll to Average $10,000.

After working quietly for several weeks the Chamber of Commerce, acting on the suggestion of L. F. Ruth, President of the Title & Trust Company of Western Pennsylvania, has succeeded in landing the Keystone Tube Works for Connellsville and this morning ground was broken for the main building which will be rushed to completion. It is expected to have the mill in operation by June 15.

The plant of the Keystone Tube Works will be located on the old Wheeler farm, and the site was donated by the Wheeler Improvement Company at the head of which are Rockwell Marlette, William Dull and Clair Stillwagon. There are three acres in the plot, which is situated between the Baltimore & Ohio and Pennsylvania railroad tracks. The company has more ground under option with a view of later extending the plant.

The main building will be 60x350 feet, of brick and steel construction, with a lean-to building 25x30 feet. The office building will be separate and apart from the main buildings. The main office of the company will be in Connellsville.

The company will manufacture special tubing which is used extensively in making brass and iron tubes, wire fencing, agricultural machinery, trolley poles, electric conduits and for general mechanical purposes. The company will employ about two men the first year and the payroll will average $10,000 a month. The greater part of the employees will be skilled mechanics. The plant will start with an initial capacity of 10,000 tons of tubes a year and will run double turn from the start.

Producers for the manufacture of gas will be installed and the plant will be operated by steam power at the beginning. Owing to the close proximity of the West Penn power house it is probable that electric power may later be adopted.

The Keystone Tube Works was recently organized under the laws of Delaware with a capital stock of $200,000. There are six directors at present but the charter will be amended to increase this number to nine. A local man will be named on the enlarged board.

The present officers of the company are President, L. F. Ruth; Vice President, F. C. Perrett; Secretary, Joshua Nuttall; and Treasurer, James E. McNary. These men with L. L. Shoop and C. G. Guyer are the present directors.

Mr. Ruth will be the active head of the concern. He has had a long and successful career along this line of work. For 15 years he was with the Hildesburgh Iron & Steel Company, after which a Superintendent and paymaster for the Carnegie Steel Company; later Chicago sales agent for the same company and up to two years ago was manufacturer's agent for five tube companies. Mr. Perrett is also an experienced tube man. Secretary Nuttall was for some years with the Pennsylvania Steel Company and since its consolidation with the National Tube Works has been a paymaster for the Carnegie Steel Company. Mr. McNary was also with the Pennsylvania Steel Company, but later engaged in the engineering and power plant construction business.

It was L. F. Ruth's acquaintance and knowledge of the ability and stability of those interested in the Keystone Tube Works that brought the concern to the attention of the Chamber of Commerce. At the same time Mr. Ruth's good words for Connellsville and his general knowledge of the situation here had much to do with convincing Mr. Hollinger and his associates of the desirability of Connellsville as a location. In this manner Mr. Ruth worked the plan from both ends, putting the Chamber of Commerce in touch with the tube works people and then keeping close to the promoters and not permitting them to overlook a single advantage that the town offers. In the financial transactions incident to the location of the mill here he was also the directing spirit and to his keen insight and persistence that the new company should deliver their end of the agreement as specifically as the town, the credit is due.

Mr. Hollinger has already rented a home in Connellsville and will move his family here immediately. The other members of the corporation will also move here. Within the next three weeks the company expects to employ between 200 and 300 men.

CHILDREN'S HOME IN DUNBAR TWP.

County Poor Directors Looked Over Farm There
On Monday.

AND THEY LIKED THE LOCATION

Proposition Will Be Put Up To The Commissioners—Farm Is Close To Trolley Line and Has Splendid Natural Advantages.

Poor Directors James J. Barnhart, Thomas Love and George M. Strickler spent yesterday afternoon inspecting a prospective site for a Children's Home, which is to be provided for the indigent poor children of Fayette county by the Poor Directors and County Commissioners at the suggestion, recently made by the Court. The farm is said to be an ideal location situated in Dunbar township a short distance from the trolley line near Dunbar. In addition to being naturally advantageous for the purposes of the county it is located in the northern portion of the county, a fact that it is said will have some weight, provide all the other advantages are equal. Both the County Commissioners and the Poor Directors have been urged to locate the new Children's Home in the Young region or the northern portion of the county if a location that is suitable in all respects can be found.

Since it was found that the old Juniata school buildings and grounds in the mountains would not be suitable or advisable for the Children's Home the Poor Directors have looked over several prospective sites. It is stated. The one inspected yesterday, however, is the best they have so far seen. While, of course, they made no statements committing themselves, they were pleased with the farm, its surroundings, state of repair, location and advantages as a home for children.

The farm consists of 72 acres. On it there are a summer cottage of eight rooms, a farm house of six rooms and a tenant dwelling of four rooms. There are two good sized barns, horse and cow stable, poultry yard, green house and hot bed. There are two fine springs on the place and wells that never go dry.

Two of the finest apple orchards in Dunbar township are on the farm, together with a plum and pear orchard and a large quantity of small fruit. The farm lies just right, it is stated, for the purpose for which it is offered, there being ample room for play and recreation for the children and its state of cultivation is such, with the fruit and orchards bearing as they are, that light work congenial for the children would provide a means of keeping them busy during their vacation time in summer. A big chestnut grove is also one of the attractions of the farm, and an appealing one.

The Poor Directors will make their report to the County Commissioners who will shortly pass on the different sites that have been inspected.

The temperature yesterday rose to 60 degrees. This morning it was 47. The river dropped from 2.80 feet last evening to 2.78 this morning.

No confirmation can be secured for the statement about the proposed industries, but they are being freely talked of there today.

More Confessions In Graft Scandal At Pittsburgh Today

UNITED PRESS TELEGRAM.
PITTSBURGH, March 22.—Dr. C. C. Lang confessed in open court today that he received $200; W. G. Froese, $200; Thomas J. Slack, $250; W. H. Harvey, $100; Richard Armstrong, $250; C. E. Woods, $600; Harry Kelson, $150; Fred Horling, $200 and L. H. Frederick, $345. All are former Councilmen.

A total of 21 have already confessed. Armstrong was asked who first spoke to him regarding the bank deposit jury ordinance. He replied former Mayor Charles F. Kirschner of Allegheny, in the interest of the German National Bank.

It is reported that Joseph C. Wasson, a former member of the "Big Six" in Council, who was sent to the Penitentiary for graft, and William Brand, former President of Council, will confess. Wasson was chairman of the Finance Committee.

The trials of those who were indicted and refused to confess will begin Monday. John E. Klein is trying to get Wasson and Brand to confess. William Fredericks told the court today that he carried $100 in his hip pocket a week before it was found. He said it was placed there at the councilman's ball game in 1908.

Forty men who were members of Pittsburgh Councils in 1908 were indicted by the Allegheny County Grand Jury last night. The indictment charges receiving bribes for their influence in the passage of the ordinance to vacate South Seventh street, which was passed over the veto of former Mayor George W. Guthrie in the summer of 1908. The Grand Jury presentation also sets forth that money was paid to P. B. Konars for other Councilmen who were not indicted.

The Grand Jury declared that they find Councils to have been rooking with corruption in 1908. They declare that there existed at that time a combination of 40 select Councilmen and 40 Common Councilmen for the purpose of securing money for the passage of ordinances.

Fully Three Hundred Present to Witness the Degree Ceremonials.

A GRAND NEW OUTFIT IS USED

Forty Members Initiated Into First Degree and 115 Into Second and Third Degrees—Order the Largest Fraternal One Here.

Fully 300 people were present to witness the beautiful and impressive ceremonies by Supreme and State officers of the Knights of Maccabees of the World when the highest degrees were conferred upon members of the Connellsville lodge, known as Young Tent No. 159, yesterday in Odd Fellows hall.

Representatives of the order were here from several lodges in this State and West Virginia, and 40 members were candidates for the first degree and 115 for the second and third degrees of the order.

The exemplification of the work, say members, was a very beautiful one, and was under the direction of Col. A. J. Mammy, degree master of the order, and every detail was carried out in the most scrupulous manner. The work was exemplified by W. E. Blaney, Grand Commander, for Matthias and Elmer; W. L. Callahan, of Pittsburgh for Anthous and Appelles; W. S. Menell, of Pittsburgh, as Judah Maccabees, assisted by J. T. Trader, W. H. Vessell, W. S. Shoets, S. A. Coughenour, Earl Swartzwelder, Arthur Wilkey, Nate Dillmore and William Behlstein.

They used for the first time the most beautiful and costly degree outfit in the State bought recently by Young lodge for this occasion. The order has the largest membership of any fraternal society in Connellsville. Young tent was organized in 1898 and has paid to widows and orphans $25,000 in benefits and has a fund of $15,000. The total membership of the order is 300,000.

The Supreme and State officers left Connellsville on the 5:10 train this morning for Confluence to confer the degrees on a class of 50 or 60 there.

Only six boys out of 15 seniors were present at school at Greenburg Friday, and the undergraduate classes were nearly depleted. The school authorities notified the pupils yesterday that hereafter all matinees during school days are to be cut out.

Dozen More Will Die From Iowa Wreck

UNITED PRESS TELEGRAM.

MARSHALLTOWN, Iowa, March 22.—Coroner Jay is dying from a broken back received en route to the Rock Island railroad wreck of yesterday when two score people were killed. It is now uncertain when the inquest will be held. The exact number of the dead from the wreck is unknown, but it is between 40 and 45.

Forty bodies have been identified, and it is feared that at least a dozen out of the 40 who were injured will also die. The absence of a turntable at Marshalltown made it necessary to run the engine with the tender first in making a detour of the consolidated train.

Among the dead is Mrs. Hoffman, celebrated as the most beautiful woman in Iowa, who was crushed and killed.

Every undertaker's establishment, the morgue and the hospitals are overflowing. Dozen more nurses arrived today. Many of the injured are being cared for in private houses because of the lack of hospital accommodations. The State Railroad Commission will investigate.

The Insurgents Will Not Demand Committee Places

UNITED PRESS TELEGRAM.

WASHINGTON, March 22.—The insurgents will not demand places on the new Rules Committee. If they get places it will be through the elections, is the agreement of the insurgents today. Murdoch declared that they fought for a principle, not for a job. Gardner, one of the best parliamentarians in the House, probably will accept a position if offered it. Insurgents favor Gardner but no caucus has been called, but it is likely it will meet the last of the week.

It is rumored that Smith, of Iowa, and Dalzell, of Pennsylvania, will refuse renomination to the committee unless the caucus demands it. Clark, Underwood, Fitzgerald and probably Cox are likely to be the Democratic representatives.

Dillon Pfoutz Of Ruffsdale Faces Battle

In spite of the fact that Dillon Pfoutz of Ruffsdale was declared of sound mind and capable of handling his estate of $17,500, after one of the hardest legal battles ever fought in Westmoreland county, Pfoutz is again subjected to the same fight.

Pfoutz had been under committee of D. L. Dillinger since 1886 and married Mrs. Ida May Hough of Ruffsdale in 1908, when his brother William Pfoutz tried to have the marriage annulled. Dillon then tried to have the committee removed and get his money, which was settled in favor of Dillon. A motion will be made to court March 26 to have the jury verdict stricken out and the committee reappointed.

Weak? Tired? Run-down?

These conditions come from overwork, a weak stomach, overtaxed nerves or feeble blood. When you feel "all in"—hardly able to drag about, no energy, no ambition, easily exhausted and can't sleep—take and note what a difference they make in your condition. The stomach is the first to feel the good effects. Food tastes good, the digestion is strengthened; bowels and bile work regularly, the blood is cleansed, and the nerves rested. The whole system responds to the tonic action of Beecham's Pills. Soon there is the buoyant feeling of returning health.

BEECHAM'S PILLS

CONGRESSIONAL ASPIRATIONS WISE AND OTHERWISE.

Modern political usage sanctions things which would have made the future gasp in amazement, choke with rage, and cause with energy; for example, a citizen of Allegheny county announces through the Republican newspapers of Pittsburgh that he is a Democratic candidate for Congress in the Republican district composed of Greene, Fayette and Somerset counties.

James H. Wise, the announcer, is a son of the late Hon. Morgan R. Wise, who represented the district composed of Greene, Fayette and Westmoreland counties in the 19th and 17th Congresses. The only announcement the elder Wise ever made was a brief card in the Democratic newspapers of the district. He ably supplemented this announcement with strictly private assurances concerning every public question from postoffice to garden seeds, and in the distribution of these assurances not a Democrat was misled. In these days it was not necessary to see the Republicans.

Morgan R. Wise was a native and resident of Little Greene and he would have bitterly resented the candidacy of any citizen of Allegheny county. If our recollection serves us correctly, we believe he did resent the only attempt ever before made to do this very thing.

The younger Wise promulgates a platform, which he announces through the medium of the Republican press to a dimly prospective and faintly admiring constituency. The elder Wise never published any such nonsense. He carried his platform under his hat and confided to the individual voter by verbal communication which it is recorded sometimes dropped into a whisper. But his platform was more thoroughly published than any of his son's can possibly be. He had no equal as an indefatigable campaigner. Not a man on either side of the street escaped him, and few babies. The times may have changed, and the customs of politics may have changed, but the effectiveness of a personal contact campaign has not changed, and this lesson is one which the younger Wise has not apparently learned from his father.

However, it little matters whether the younger Wise is wiser in politics than the elder Wise, or otherwise. It will be a long time before this Congressional district is represented by a Democrat, especially a Democrat from an outside district. If James is as Wise as his name indicates, he will try to break into Congress from some other district. We would suggest that he spread his platform and set up his candidacy in Wise county, Virginia.

DAMAGE CLAIMS FOR MINING OPERATIONS.

The Somerset county coal operators are beginning to encounter the inevitable suits for damages because of the letting down of the farmer's surface lands or the taking away of his domestic water supply.

Such damage suits do not obtain where purchasers of coal from the original owners have gained wisdom with experience. Yet the farmer who sells his coal without knowledge or proper appreciation of the damages which may be wrought thereby by mining out the coal is evidently the victim of a measure of injustice when he unwittingly waives all such damages, and, on the other hand, the operator is too frequently mulcted in large and manifestly unjust sums by blood-hounds before whom such cases are tried.

Perhaps a more equitable plan would be to provide a final payment on the land in the nature of liquidated damages, not to be due until mining operations were commenced; but in practice such a plan would be difficult of execution because of the unwillingness of the vendor to agree to it. He usually wants all that is coming to him as soon as he can get it.

THE RUNNING BOARD AND THE SUMMER CAR.

The running board of a trolley car is no place for passengers, and they stand there at their own risk, so decides the Westmoreland county court.

The decision is no doubt good law, but the running board during the summer season is frequently the only place some passengers can find to ride upon. Under this decision the passenger must secure a seat, take a rick, or take a walk. Perhaps the dilemma will be better solved by better planned cars. The trolley interests do not invite accidents on the running board or elsewhere; on the contrary, they seek by every available means to guard against them.

The summer car is desirable because of its coolness and the facility it affords for quick exit and entry. If the ingenuity of the trolley inventor can devise some plan whereby riding on the running board may be prevented there will be no need to change the style of the summer car.

THE FAYETTE COUNTY CHILDREN'S HOME.

The factious suggestion of the Uniontown press, that perhaps some of the proposed new county buildings would be located at or near Connellsville instead of around the vicinity of Uniontown, is being taken seriously by the Poor Directors, who are considering the purchase of a small farm between Connellsville and Dunbar and the establishment there of the proposed Children's Home.

If this is finally determined upon we hope there will be no eleventh hour objections on the part of our esteemed contemporaries over the decision of the Poor Directors; no late repentance over words spoken either in jest or earnest; no bucking and filling on the dump.

The site under consideration is reported to be an excellent one from every point of view, but if there should be anything objectionable about it we will furnish a better one near Connellsville.

The Pinkerton tunnel tragedy has the elements of mystery, but the player will have an opportunity of explaining the matter in court, and his explanation will probably be supplemented by other less biased testimony. In the end there is not likely to be any mystery left.

"The Light of Other Days" was in evidence last night for a short time.

The profits of the United States Steel Corporation have been handsome even in dull periods. This is what consolidation can do. It can increase profits without materially increasing prices. Without the Steel Trust it is safe to say that the iron and steel boom would have gone up in a blaze of glory like the rocket and come down scorched and worthless like the stick. There is some merit in mergers after all.

Morgantown and Fairmont get another train to Connellsville and an earlier one. Connellsville will offer no objections. The train will be just as good to us. What we need worse than anything else is more train service to Pittsburgh and Uniontown.

David danced before the Lord and Helena danced before King Herod, but the Lord King looks as if it had been imported from the Mount of Olives.

Somerset town gives promise of becoming something of a railroad center.

Gentle Spring is too gentle. The flower probably ran again before March is over and he is just mauling and unfeeling enough to rear at the Easter bonnet.

'Tis a season of wrecks on sea and on land. The accident insurance companies ought to do a good business, but perhaps it is blasier in volume than in profit.

Captain Johnny certainly pulled the sky down upon the Pittsburgh Connellsville Game.

Perryopolis protests strongly against the proposed prohibition settlement in that town. The local ever since Washington built his mill.

The B. & O. gives Connellsville a cut rate to Pittsburgh. Perhaps the company will have to give us that other train in order to accommodate its business.

The Fayette county courts are trying a murder case this week, but there's nothing unusual in the fact.

In the debate in the Hungarian Chamber of Deputies the representation of solid arguments in the shape of books and ink wells. Such arguments are more striking than conviction.

SCOTSDALE DEAL FOR BIG ESTATE.

Howard M. Davis Purchases
Former Parker Property for $7,000

FROM SAVINGS & TRUST CO.

Machinery of Black Cutlery Works
Sold—Y. M. C. A. is Active in Spring
Work in Gymnasium—Other Notes of the Mill Town.

SCOTSDALE, March 22.—One of the largest property deals in town for some time was consummated yesterday afternoon when the Scottish Savings & Trust Company transferred to Howard M. Davis the George C. Parker property on North Chautau street. Mr. Davis is superintendent of the Scottish plant of the American Sheet & Tin Plate Company, and owns a nice property on Spring street and Grant avenue, where he has resided for several years. The property changing hands yesterday is considered by well informed people as being a mark of success. The house is a large brick one of about 10 rooms, situated on a gently sloping lot 175x110 feet in dimensions. The house was formerly the old Stauffer homestead and was bought by George C. Parker and sold by him to A. C. Schiller, of Pittsburgh, who moved here when Mr. Parker took up his residence in the country near the Tyrone Presbyterian church, and was later bought by the Savings & Trust Company. The consideration was $7,000.

Ridgeview Park Meetings.
The Scottish people who attend Ridgeview park every summer will be interested to learn that the dates for most of the summer meetings have been selected. Methodist Day is set for June 21. The Pentecostal annual camp meeting and Chautauque assembly will be held from the middle of July to the middle of August. There will be a meeting of the stockholders at the park, May 25.

Cutlery Works Sold.
The Lumber interests yesterday sold to the Case Company of Kane and Southport the machinery and fixtures of the Black Cutlery works, which operated here for a short time. The concern purchasing it is in the knife manufacturing business and took all the special machinery used in this line. A large brick factory building of modern type, with power plant and well adapted to almost any manufacturing interests is retained here, and with a two acre plot of ground, is being looked over by industries that consider buying it. The machinery and fixtures sold were shipped away by the purchasers yesterday.

Interesting Bouts.
The attendance at the local gymnasium far surpassed all expectations. The object was to break all the records of attendance of the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, to which end all members were working hard. On Saturday not a minute in the day is the gymnasium door closed and the attendance is not confined to the junior classes only; the Intermediate and Young Men's classes are well represented. Practice for shadowgraph has been in progress for the past several days. This will be the amusing part of the program of the exhibition of the gymnasium classes to be held at the Geyer opera house, April 7. In this Bill Knocken and Tom Swaters will battle for the championship of the evening's entertainment which will bring the stock-like reverence of the weary business man back to the days when he was a kid.

Following are the results of the first of the series of bouts in the wrestling tournament which began Saturday afternoon. Charles Kistner bested Herman Intendmiller in two straight falls and in a second bout Kistner threw Orin Langhrey in two straight falls. Earl Gilbert bested George Frey in two straight falls and in the fourth bout between John Blyler and Frank Shaffer, Blyler took first and Shaffer the second and then a battle royal for the winner of the third in which Blyler threw Shaffer after almost a half-hour tussle, an exhibition that would have been worth admission price. Albert Robbins threw Frank Lowellyn in two straight falls for the fifth bout of the afternoon. To these series of bouts held every Saturday the general public is invited; in dues not excepted.

Visitors in Uniontown.
C. L. Work, J. E. Shaw, C. E. Mills, A. F. King, E. L. Bradley, John Dean, W. F. Tanshill, W. B. Bowers and A. E. Wagner were among the Connellsville persons who were in Uniontown yesterday on business.

The annual banquet of the Young Medical Social Club will be held tomorrow evening at the Hotel Royal.

at Less Than Half.

AN OPPORTUNITY
CAREFUL, PRUDENT BUYERS
CANNOT AFFORD TO MISS.

There has never been a time when a buyer with cash, or who is willing to pay within a year and a half, can get such genuine piano bargains as can be had here now during this consolidation sale.

The object of this sale is to turn an overwhelming big stock into cash or its equivalent before our many interests are merged into one.

The new consolidated company takes hold of the business Monday morning, April 1. This sale, therefore, closes Saturday evening, April 2. For various reasons it is desirable to turn the business over to the new consolidation without any second hand or used pianos on our floors.

If it were possible we would sell every single second hand and used piano on our floors between now and the close of this sale—and we will, if you will bet come and see what remarkable bargains these are.

There are pianos on our floors that have been slightly used—that would pass any time for brand new pianos—that are priced one half and even less than they will for now.

Some of these are only slightly shop worn, others have been used for rental work; others have been loaned to celebrated artists who have visited the city from time to time. In all, they are splendid instruments, correct in style, perfect in action, exquisite in tone—each and every one guaranteed as fully as it had just been rolled out of the factory.

We mention these especially—which have been picked at random, from a long list just to show the scope of the bargains we have to offer:

$350 Foster Pianos, Sale Price $165,
$350 Price & Teepie, Sale Price $175,
$375 Marshall & Windell, Sale Price $193.

$350 Lakeside, Sale Price $188.

$400 Price & Teepie, Sale Price $250.

$450 Kurtzman, Sale Price $320.

$500 Inner Player, Sale Price $375.

$275 Inner Cabinet Players, Sale Price $190.

$250 Inner Cabinet Player, Sale Price $98.

There is only one thing we want to impress upon you—we do not want you to get the impression that the inducements of this sale are long-drawn-out-over-egging terms.

The advantage of this sale to you are the prices that are being made, and the advantages to us, is the cash or its equivalent—the prices ruling being for spot cash—or such TIME AS WILL BEST SUIT YOUR CONVENIENCE UP TO EIGHTEEN MONTHS with 6 per cent interest for the time taken.

New pianos including grand and player pianos, including all renowned makes, such as Chickering, Knabes, Hardmans, Estey, etc., at cost plus selling expenses, during this sale. Write for stock list and prices

A PUBLIC COURT TRIAL.

Prominent Citizen Charged With Larceny of a Valuable Rooster.

For some time, it is alleged, one of our prominent citizens has been the happy possessor of a valuable Plymouth Rock rooster. He had no special qualities above roosters in general, except a degree of plumpness that has time and again excited the cupidity of epileps.

Not far from the residence of the gentleman mentioned above, lives another well known citizen who has an unconquerable appetite for poultry.

One evening recently this rooster retired to his perch in the hen house as happy and contented as any rooster in Connellsville. The next morning he was missing. That day, the gentleman with the longing for poultry, had rooster for dinner. This may or may not, be regarded as a suspicious circumstance; but there is other evidence that forms a connecting link between the hen house and the table. The result is that he will be tried in public for the larceny of the fowl and his questionable attitude towards roosters in general will be given an airing in the near future.

The parties in the case are so prominent that it is feared no court room will hold the vast crowd desirous of attending the trial, so it will be held in the Solomon theatre on Thursday evening, March 24th, under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association, for whose benefit the proceeds will be devoted.

In other words, it will be a Mock Court trial in which a large number of our most prominent and popular citizens will participate. The committee having the affair in charge have engaged Col. A. V. Newton of Worcester, Mass., the veteran manager of these entertainments, to attend to the details and personally conduct the trial.

Through the Wall

By
CLEVELAND MOFFETT

Copyright, 1909, by D. Appleton & Co.

M. Paul started, and "I see—that's it! He bored this hole, first: it's the right hand one when you're in this room, the left hand one when you're in No. 7. As you say, this murderer looked through the hole while he waited for the second to be bored; so, naturally, he bored through the hole where his eye was. That was his first great mistake."

"What difference does it make which hole the man fired through?"
"Just this—by firing through the left hand hole he has given us precious evidence against him. Come back into the other room and I'll show you." And when they had returned to No. 7 he continued: "Take the pistol, Trenton; you are the murderer. You've been waiting your moment while the anger glared through from the other side. The first hole is finished. You see the point of the anger as it comes through the second. You grip your pistol and look through the left hand hole; you see the woman holding back the curtains; you see Martinez draw out the anger from the right hand hole and lay it down. Now he leans forward, pressing his face to the completed eye hole; you see the whites of his eyes not three inches away. Quick! 'Patrol up! Ready to fire! No, no; through the left hand hole where he fired."

"Sacre maitre!" muttered Tignol. "It's awkward aiming through this left hand hole, because it's too near the sideboard. I can't get my eye there o' sight along the pistol barrel."

"You mean your right eye?"
"Of course."
"Could you get your left eye there?"
"Yes, but if I aimed with my left eye I'd have to aim with my left hand, and I couldn't hit a cow that way."

Coquell looked at Tignol steadily. "You could if you were a left handed man."

"You mean to say—" The other stared.
"We've got to look for a left handed murderer!"

It was nearly 4 o'clock when Coquell left the Ansonia and started up the Champs Elysees, breathing deep of the early morning air. The night was still dark, although day was breaking in the east. And what a night it had been! After all, what had he acted on? A girl's dream and an odd coincidence. Was that enough? Was that enough to make a man alter his whole life and face extraordinary danger? Was it enough?

Coquell was just glancing about for a cab to the Turkish bath place in fact, he was glancing one that he saw forging up the Avenue de la Grande Armee—when he became aware that a gentleman was approaching him. Turning quickly, he saw a man of medium height with a dark beard tinged with gray, wearing a loose black cape overcoat and a silk hat. The stranger saluted politely and said with a slight foreign accent: "How are you, M. Louis? I have been expecting you."

"The words were simple enough, yet they contained a double surprise for Coquell. He was at a loss to understand how he could have been expected here, where he had come by the merest accident, and certainly this was the first time in twenty years that any one, except his mother, had addressed him as Louis. He had been christened Louis Paul."

"How do you know that my name is Louis?"
"I know a great deal about you," answered the other, and then, with significant emphasis, "I know that you are interested in dreams."

Coquell instinctively felt that something momentous was preparing.
"Rather—love, your getting on that cab tonight," remarked the other.
"Ah, you know about that?"
"Yes, and about the Rio de Janeiro offer. We want you to reconsider your decision."

"Who, pray, are 'we'?"
"Certain persons interested in this Ansonia affair."
"Persons who know about the crime?"
"Possibly."

"If I'm to do these persons know what covered the holes in No. 7?"
"A Japanese print."
"And in No. 4?"
"Some yellow hangings."

"Ah!" exclaimed Coquell in surprise. "Do they know why Martinez bored these holes?"
"To please the woman," was the prompt reply.
"Did she want Martinez killed?"
"No."

"Then why did she want the holes bored?"
"She wanted to see into No. 7."
It was extraordinary.
"What do you want with me?"
"The person's representative."

"May the person you represent," interrupted Coquell, "a criminal of this type act alone?"
"As you like," answered the other carelessly. "Then the person I represent wishes you to withdraw from this case."

The message was preposterous.
"Naturally," retorted Coquell. "Tell your friend or employer that I am only mildly interested in his wishes."

The dark bearded man answered, quite untroubled. "Ah, I may be able to lighten your interest." The stranger drew from his coat pocket a large, thick envelope fastened with an elastic band and handed it to the detective.

Coquell's curiosity was stirred. What desperate purpose lurked behind his self confident mask? Could it be that he knew the assassin or—or was he the assassin?

Wondering thus, M. Paul opened the tenfold envelope and saw that it contained a bundle of thousand franc notes.
"There is a large sum here,"
"Fifty thousand francs. It's for you, and as much more will be handed you the day you sail for Brazil. This sum is a bonus in addition to the salary already fixed. And, remember, you have a life position there with a brilliant chance of fame."

Coquell snapped his fingers. "I don't care that for fame. I'm going to work out this case for the sheer joy of doing it."

"You will never work out this case!"
"Why not?"
"Because you will not be allowed to. It's doubtful if you could work it out, but there's a chance that you could, and we don't purpose to take that chance."

He paused as if to check too vehement an utterance, and M. Paul caught a threatening gleam in his eyes that he long remembered.

"If you do you will be thwarted at every turn; you will be made to suffer in ways you do not dream of, through those who are dear to you, through your dog, through your mother—"

"You dare!" cried Coquell.
"We dare anything," flashed the stranger. "I'm daring something now, am I not? Don't you suppose I know what you are thinking? Well, I take the risk because—because you are intelligent. It is hopeless for you to struggle against our knowledge and our resources, quite hopeless. We have, for example, the fullest information about you and your life down to the smallest detail."

"Yes?" answered Coquell. "What's the name of my old servant?"
"Melanie."

"What's the name of the canary bird I gave her last week?"
"It isn't a canary bird; it's a bullfinch, and its name is Pete."

"Not bad, not at all bad," muttered the other, and the twinkle in his eyes faded.
"We know the important things, too—all that concerns you from your forged resignation two years ago down to your talk yesterday with the girl at Notre Dame. We know exactly the moment when you are weak and unprepared, as I know now that you are unarmed because you left that pistol with Papa Tignol."

For a moment Coquell was silent and then, "Here's your money," he said, returning the envelope.
"Subborn fellow! And unbelieving! You doubt our power against you. Come, I will give you a glimpse of it. Suppose you try to arrest me. You have been thinking of it, now act. Well, do your duty. I want to show you that even in so simple an effort against us as this you would inevitably fail."

The man's impudence was passing all bounds. "You mean that I cannot arrest you?" menaced Coquell.
"Precisely. I mean that with all your cleverness and with a distinct advantage in position here on the Champs Elysees, with policemen all about us, you cannot arrest me."

"Well, do your duty. I want to show you that even in so simple an effort against us as this you would inevitably fail."

"We'll see about that," answered M. Paul grimly.

"M. Coquell, you will probably never see me again, but you will hear from me. Now blow your whistle."

Coquell was puzzled. If this was a bluff it was the maddest, most incomprehensible bluff that a criminal ever made. The detective paused to think. They had come down the Champs Elysees and were nearing the Rond point, the best guarded part of Paris, where the shrill summons of his police call would be answered almost instantly.

His trained fingers sought the painful pressure points.

He was at a loss to understand how he could have been expected here, where he had come by the merest accident, and certainly this was the first time in twenty years that any one, except his mother, had addressed him as Louis. He had been christened Louis Paul.

"How do you know that my name is Louis?"
"I know a great deal about you," answered the other, and then, with significant emphasis, "I know that you are interested in dreams."

Coquell instinctively felt that something momentous was preparing.
"Rather—love, your getting on that cab tonight," remarked the other.

The message was preposterous.
"Naturally," retorted Coquell. "Tell your friend or employer that I am only mildly interested in his wishes."

The dark bearded man answered, quite untroubled. "Ah, I may be able to lighten your interest." The stranger drew from his coat pocket a large,

"There is no hurry, I suppose," said the detective. "I'd like to ask a question or two."

Coquell was studying his adversary. That beard? Could it be false? And the hands, the arms? He had watched these from the first, noting every movement, particularly the left hand and the left arm, but he had detected nothing significant.

"I wonder if you have anything against me personally?" inquired M. Paul.
"On the contrary," declared the other, "we admire you and wish you well."

"But you threaten my dog?"
"If necessary, yes."
"And my mother?"
"If necessary."

The detective moment had come, for just then there shot around the corner from the Avenue Montaigne a large red automobile, which crossed the Champs Elysees slowly, turning into the Avenue Gabrielle, and stopped under the chestnut trees. Like a dash it came into the detective's mind that the same automobile had passed them once before some streets back. On the front seat were two men, strong looking fellows, accomplices, no doubt.

Bronchial Tubes All Stuffed Up.

"While a resident of Washington, D. C., I suffered continually and intensely with a bronchial trouble that was simply terrible to endure. I would have sworn that I could hardly breathe, I would choke up, fill up in my throat and bronchial tubes, and the doctoring that I did and the remedies used were of no benefit to me whatever. I heard about Booth's Hyomel being so beneficial in catarrhal and bronchial affections and procured an outfit. I received relief from the first by its use. I continued with it and received a cure. It is about two years since I have suffered at all from my former trouble."

—Mrs. H. J. Fannell, 464 N. Augusta street, Stanton, Va., March 26, 1909.

MT. PLEASANT, March 22.—Ty-

the Mission Church on Shippe street this afternoon at 2:30. The body of searched all day yesterday for any available clue to the thief or thieves who broke open several freight cars in the B. & O. yards here Saturday night and made their escape with an estimated hundred dollars worth of clothing and other goods. The police force obtained the only possible clue and this was in recovering nearly $100 worth of tobacco and articles stolen from the stolen goods were found in a field belonging to the "Lovers Brothers" on

Spring Togs for Men

Next Sunday is Easter and we will all want to spruce up a bit. The new Spring fixings you will have to have later can be better bought now while the lines are at their best—and beside, you'll need them for Easter.

Shirts for Spring Wear

The new Shirts are particularly attractive—showing beautiful stripe effects in black and white, blue and white and lavender and white; also new shades of blue and gray with narrow light stripe. And the fabric is only one of the good features of these shirts. Of equal importance is their design and finish. The carefully matched plaited bosoms give a great variety of stripe combinations; they are of liberal dimensions, carefully made and perfect fitting. You'll appreciate the comfort as well as the style.

Two-Eyelet Tie Oxfords. The high arch, high heel and low cut of this shoe makes it unusually attractive. Made over an entirely new last that gives it a close fitting top and
